Heat Stress Prevention

Heat Illness: Exposure to heat can cause illness and death. The most serious heat illness is heat stroke. Other heat illnesses include heat exhaustion, heat cramps and heat rash.
- Block out direct sun and other heat sources.
- Drink plenty of fluids. Drink often and BEFORE you are thirsty.
- Avoid beverages containing alcohol or caffeine.
- Wear lightweight, light colored, loose fitting clothes. Wear hats and use sun screen.

Get acclimated: Limit amount of time working or exercising in the heat until you’re conditioned to it.

Risk Factors: Poor fitness, large body mass, minor illness, chronic illness such as heart and lung disease, medications (cold & allergy and some tranquilizers), age (young and old).

Symptoms of Heat Exhaustion: Dizziness, headache, weakness, rapid pulse, nausea, cramps, chest pain, labored breathing.

Symptoms of Heat Stroke: May be confused, unable to think clearly, pass out, collapse, have seizures, high body temperature, lack of sweating, muscle cramps or weakness.

Never leave children, pets or anyone in a parked car. This is a common cause of heat-related deaths in children.

If you think a person may be experiencing heatstroke seek immediate medical help! CALL 112

GROUP B STREP INFECTION AWARENESS

- Group B streptococcus (strep) is a common bacterium often carried in your intestines or lower genital tract. Group B strep is usually harmless in adults.
  - In newborns, however, it can cause a serious illness known as group B strep disease.
  - If you’re a healthy adult, there’s nothing you need to do about group B strep.
  - If you’re pregnant, get a group B strep screening test during your third trimester.
  - If you have group B strep, antibiotic treatment during labor can protect your baby.

Symptoms: Infants

Most babies born to women carrying group B strep are healthy. But the few who are infected by group B strep during labor can become critically ill.

- In infants, illness caused by group B strep can take two forms: early onset or late onset.

Early-onset group B strep disease. A baby with early-onset group B strep disease becomes sick within one week after birth.

Signs and symptoms may include: Fever, Difficulty feeding, Lethargy

Late-onset group B strep disease. Late-onset group B strep disease develops within a week to a few months after birth, usually within the first month. Signs and symptoms may include: Difficulty breathing, Fever, Difficulty feeding, Lethargy, Irritability

An infant is at increased risk of developing group B strep disease if:
- The mother carries group B strep in her body
- The baby is born prematurely (earlier than 37 weeks)
- The mother’s water breaks 18 hours or more before delivery
- The mother has an infection of the placental tissues and amniotic fluid (chorioamnionitis)
- Group B strep bacteria have been detected in the mother’s urine (bacteriuria) during pregnancy (either her current pregnancy or previous pregnancies)
- The mother’s temperature is greater than 100 F (38 C) during labor
- The mother previously delivered an infant with group B strep disease

For more information schedule an appointment with your provider at 676-6666
